

PRODUCT OVERVIEW

The Bluestone Elite strategy utilizes tactical asset management to improve the risk adjusted return versus a traditional all equity portfolio over the course of a full market cycle. The strategy primarily utilizes ETFs and equities but may access fixed income and preferred securities for the purposes of portfolio construction. The Manager uses a top-down approach to identify sectors that we believe will produce strong or weak relative performance to the overall market and makes investments to capitalize on these market opinions. When the manager deems it appropriate to position the portfolio defensively, this strategy considers cash to be an asset class and will allocate a significant percentage to cash and cash equivalents.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

The Bluestone Elite strategy is based upon two guiding principles. The first principle is commonly referred to as "loss aversion." This theory states that all things being equal, the effect of losing capital has a more profound negative effect on both investor psyche as well as performance in actual dollars than the positive effect of participating in the full upside of a rising market. The second principle states that diversification, although an important tool in the appropriate context, does not provide significant enough protection against major market downturns. We feel that tactical asset management is the most effective way to manage these principles while still maintaining significant upside participation.

WHAT IS TACTICAL?

At Bluestone, tactical asset management involves having a well-defined thesis on the market and allocating the portfolio to either capitalize or defend against major market movements. The risk tolerance of the strategy will range over time from conservative to aggressive and will occasionally make significant allocations to cash or cash equivalents based upon the Manager's views on the market.
